Rev. T. M. McClung Gave $500 to Alleged Investment Brokers.

The Rev. T. M. McClung, of Milton, Ind. reported to the police yesterday that he had been swindled out of $500 by Edward Lawrence and G. H. Thomas, who represented themselves as G. H. Thomas & Co., investment brokers, of New York. McClung said the company quit after being in operation three weeks, leaving the clerical force unpaid. The company opened offices on the seventh floor of the Law building. McClung said he was offered a position and was requested to deposit $500, which he turned over the first of this week. Since the office has been closed he has found that all the fixtures are covered with mortgages and he cannot recover anything. Thomas and Lawrence left their boarding house on North Illinois street the day the office closed. It is said that Thomas displayed $10,000 before he left the city. McClung said he lost every

Leads Them All BUSY DAY FOR MANY NEN

STREAMS OF PEOPLE IN THE COUN-TY TREASURER'S OFFICE.

Almost the Last Day for the Payment of Taxes-Election Officers Get Their Supplies.

Yesterday was the busy day in the courthouse. All day crowds of men and women passed through the corridors and offices of the building in the transaction of business that has been classed as one of the inevitable things of life, the payment of taxes. Yesterday was next to the last day for the payment of the second of the semiannual payments of taxes to County Treasurer Armin Koehne. Cashier Henry Smith and Henry Slate, patrolman on duty in the office handling the crowds and keeping the anxious taxpayers lined up to give their money to Smith, were the two busiest men

But with all of the trouble found in directing the payers of taxes to the proper place to pay them, the busiest day of the payments was had and money poured into the cash drawers of the office. The people have begun to realize that the time for paying taxes without a premium has nearly H. C. Carr ended and nearly all of the slow ones were on hand to tender their portion of the county's revenues.

Monday will be the last day of the payment, and at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, when the treasurer's office closes, all the persons who have neglected to pay their taxes will be delinquent and it will cost them 10 per cent. additional, Treasurer Koehne says. If the payment is mailed and the postmark shows that the envelope containing the check has been deposited in the postoffice before 12 o'clock midnight on Monday, this will be considered as coming within the time limit by the treasurer. Many envelopes with checks and money orders are pouring into the office now and the clerks are two or three days behind with the bushels of envelopes stacked in the cashier's rooms. Many more letters are expected in to-day's and to-morrow's mails. By Wednesday the office force hopes to have completed the work of handling the

The mortgage exemption law has been taken advantage of by many of the taxpayers, and with nearly every payment of taxes a pink slip was presented. With these pink slips is Patrolman Slate's chief trouble. It kept him busy yesterday an-nouncing that these pink slips would have to be signed "on the back" before the cashier would receive them, and he would always close his harangue with the statement that he would sign them if it was ville. too much trouble for the taxpayer.

The police and firemen were paid in warrants on the Indiana Trust Company and many were the murmurs of the city's employes who could not get their money in the treasurer's office. ELECTION OFFICERS.

All of the visitors to the courthouse yesterday were not there to pay taxes, however. The other half of the crowd was composed of election sheriffs and inspectors, who came to the offices of the County Commissioners, clerk and sheriff to get their instructions and election equipment. In the clerk's office the ballots and advice were handed out by Merrill Moores, Clinton L. Hare and Clerk George B. of the ballots and the rest of the office force. In the commissioners' office, where the inspectors secured their bundles of all election questions, Chief Deputy Fred Sheperd presided and handed out the bundles and occasionally a cigar and always congratulatory hopes on the result woman member of a theatrical company in the precinct represented by the inspec- playing in Louisville out of a $165 diamond

INCOME TAX RECALLED.

Was Applied Once in Indiana to an Unwilling Victim.

The tax upon incomes levied during and for a few years after the war of the rebellion was not a popular one, though many patriotic citizens paid it cheefully as evidence of their loyalty to their government. There was on person, however, who paid an income assessment under protest and with much tribulation. This happened in 1868, during the days when Austin H. Brown was collector and G. David Braden assessor of internal revenue, respectively, for the Sixth revenue district of Indiana. Their duties were both arduous and varied. The case in question came up in Shelby county. There were two neighbors, who for the purpose of this story shall be named Black and White, which the reader will understand are only substituted for the real persons. Mr. White greatly admired by Mr. Black. Some gossip, founded on truthful actions on the part of both Mr. Black and Mrs. White, with strong inferences of infidelity on the part of the latter, reached the ears of Mr. White, and the jealous husband threatened to bring suit in the Circuit Court against Mr. Black, claiming damages in the amount of $5,000 for alienating the affections of his wife After talking over the matter, and to avoid a great public scandal, the attorneys on both sides recommended a compromise, which was accepted by the parties, the defendant giving as a reason for his agreeing that "if the case went to trial it might make talk among the neighbors." He promptly paid over to the plaintiff the sum of $3,500 in full of all demands and the matter was dropped.

Just about this time the revenue officers, who kept track of the affair, appeared upon the scene and made an assessment against newly acquired fortune. Mr. White strongly objected to this proceeding on the ground that there was no law authorizing it. A statement of the case, giving every detail connected therewith, was prepared by the collector and submitted to Hon. E. H. Rollins, the commissioner of internal revenue at Washington, for his opinion. This official approved the action of the district revenue officers and complimented them for their entirely legal act and their prompt action, and soon after the secretary of the treasury, Hon. Hugh McCulloch, followed with an equally complimentary letter of approval, with the remark that this was the nly case of a similar character on record.

ter to the postoffice receipts. The circulation of this magazine is one of the largest of its kind in the world, reaching Alaska in the north, Mexico in the south, Nova Scotia in the east and California in the west. Mr. Burford's competitors for the contract were publishing houses in Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, S Louis and Peoria. The excellent facilities afforded by Indianapolis for the distribution of such a large volume of mail matter was no small factor in influencing the decision for removing the publication from Peoria. Messrs. Hannahan and Carter expressed themselves as fully convinced that Mr. Burford's facilities for handling this contract were the best they had inspected since they had the matter of the change of location for the magazine under considof the brotherhood were to be removed to this city from Peorla, Ill., has no foundation in fact, they say.

HIS VIEW OF THE HELMING-GIL CHRIST CONTROVERSY.

He Contends that the First Article in the Journal Was Substantially Correct.

The Rev. Levi White, pastor of Trinity Congregational Church, where the meeting of the Central Association of Congregational Churches was held, says he has received several letters from persons outside of Indianapolis asking him to give them the facts of the misunderstanding between the Rev. O. C. Helming and the Rev. H. H. Gilchrist, from his stand-

He says: "I had not intended to say anything on the subject, as I am not a party to the controversy and am in no way responsible for it. I wish to say, with the kindest of feeling toward these brethren, that I am sorry my church was the scene of an incident that resulted in much unpleasantness between these ministers. I hope that in future controversies of this kind contending ministers will furnish their own church and congregation.

"In answer to inquiries I would say that eration. The report that the headquarters in my judgment each party to the controversy was at fault. The Rev. Mr. Gilchrist, I think, was imprudent in addressing the moderator, although what he said was general in its application. The sermon was an embodiment of terse, gospel truth and was founded upon the seventh chapter of Matthew, a part of our Lord's sermon. I am unable to see how any believer in the teachings of Jesus Christ could adversely criticise the matter of the sermon, however much the manner of its delivery might antagonize them. Throughout the exciting scene it was remarked by all that Mr. Gilchrist maintained a quiet and brotherly attitude and gave evidence of the work of grace in his own heart that he professed to be preaching.
"I think Mr. Helming at fault in not receiving more kindly the personal allusion to an expression in his morning address, in the audience of those that had not heard the address were unable to determine the point at issue. I think, too, that the seniority of Mr. Gilchrist, both in age and ministerial experience, ought to have commanded consideration from the younger members of the association. "The accounts of the incident in Wednesday's Journal and News were substantially correct. Many statements in Thursday's article in the Journal, however, I do not A representative of a jewelry house in the following: "They insist that the audience was not made up of representative Congregationalists, but of persons in sympathy with the speaker.' In reference to the exclamations of 'Amen' heard during the speaker's remarks, as mentioned in the Journal, and to which his critics do so strenuously object, it is to be remarked that they were heard most frequently to come from one of the most spirited and representative North Side Congregationalists.

"Personally I would say that representative Congregationalists do not object to the reverent use of so Biblical a term as 'Amen,' expressing as it does our indorsement of religious sentiment, and would say further that those who are disturbed by such expressions are too dead to be fit representatives of any church.
